DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Due to the applicant's amendments to the claims, the previous rejections are rendered moot. New rejections are presented in view of newly found prior art: DE 19743508. '508 teaches a method of heating washing solution, wherein water is supplied to fill the tub via source 25, water is supplied to a steam creating heating element 9 via a source 15, and said steam is injected into the top of a horizontal tub in order to heat the contents of the tub.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 39 -68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DE 19743508 ('508). '508 teaches a washing machine and the associated operational method wherein steam is used to heat the clothes and washing solution. '508 shows a washing machine with a tub and drum that would be located within a standard appliance cabinet as known in the art. The tub is supplied water from water source associated with valve 25. A steam generation unit comprising a heater 9 is supplied with a separate source of water associated with valve 15. The steam generation unit is shown as being located above the tub and supplying steam into the top of the tub through a conduit. '508 does not disclose tumbling the clothes, however tumbling is a well-known method of agitation in horizontal washers, and including a step of agitation is not considered to patentably distinguish the instant application from the presented prior art. Using predetermined fill levels and filling the water tub in stages is conventional in the art. It is a common method of ensuring proper water quantity and preventing overflow. There are a finite number of times when steam can be added to the wash tub: before wash water is supplied, during the supplying of wash water, or after the supplying of wash water as well as before tumbling the clothes, during tumbling the clothes, or after tumbling the clothes. Figuring out the optimum time and duration for the addition of steam is considered to be within the skill of one practicing the art. One skilled in the art is capable of figuring out the optimum temperature for washing through routine experimentation. '508 also teaches a recirculation conduit 13. Thus, '508 obviates the method of injecting steam into a tumble-action washing machine during the washing operation.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
